Comprehension

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

Electricity has changed life on Earth quite a lot. As a matter of fact, the discovery of the electric energy has made modern life different from life long ago. A hundred years ago, people had to go to bed early at night because they had no electric lights in their houses and the streets were dark. Nowadays, there are lights everywhere and life never stops day or night. In the factories, workers had to do everything by hand. Now machines powered by electricity make things easily and much faster. In the past, people had to make fire to make their homes warmer and cook their food so, they collected heaps of fire wood in their homes. The fire they made produced a lot of smoke and made the houses dirty. Nowadays, electric stoves and ovens make our houses warm, cook our food easily and keep our houses clean.
